European Intelligence.

LONDON, March 28.

Extract of a letter from Paris, March 22.

"THE French revolution has not respected the etiquette of courts more than it has the laws of nations. Ambassadors from independent states have been arrested without cause, and released without apology; nay, insult has sometimes been added to the offence, and strange to say, it never excited amongst the diplomatic corps, any other feelings, than apprehension for the individual safety of each of its members, and a silent pity for the victims of the violated laws of nations. By this impolitic conduct, the representatives of emperors and kings have accustomed upstarts to treat them with impertinence and insolence, and to hold to them, at the courts of Luxembourg and Thuilleries, the low language of the bar or the haughty and commanding language of the camp.

"In former times, even when wars or conspiracies forced the French monarchs to order any foreign ambassador to leave the court or the country, anger did not get the better of dignity, and the offended never forgot that the offender was the representative of an independent prince, his equal in rank if not in power.

"The remarks I heard yesterday, when I dined with the count De M———, who very justly observed that some new diplomatic regulations are absolutely necessary, and either all other independent states must adopt the revolutionary laws, language, and conduct of France or force France to fix the period when it will again acknowledge & respect the laws, customs & etiquette, acknowledged by all other states & nations of Europe; and that till such a period, charge d'affaires should be the only persons employed in France.

"You ask me if I visit the foreign ministers here, and if they are men of diplomatic talents? I have the honor of the acquaintance of ALL the ministers from all the yet independent nations, and most of them are grown old in diplomatic employment, and are of tried abilities.

"Count de Cobentzel, the imperial ambassador, brother to the successor of baron Thugut, is a person of amiable manners, and if his attendance at St. Cloud, two days after the insult offered to Count De Stahremberg, before any satisfaction was given, or orders received from his own court how to act, has rather lowered him in the public opinion, the treaty then negociating about the indemnities for the grand duke of Tuscany, forced him, no doubt, on this, and other occasions, to believe differently from what as a Kunitz or a Thugut would have done: he has abilities, but it is reported, that Talleyrand has said, that his official dinners are better than his official memorials.

"Count De Marcoff, the Russian ambassador, was under the great Catharine II. ambassador to the courts of Vienna, Stockholm, and Copenhagen, and at her death, he was left prime minister: exiled by Paul I. he was recalled by the present emperor, and sent as his ambassador to Paris. Accustomed to the polite etiquette of courts, the revolutionary one in France surprized and offended him, and he did not conceal his sentiments: the French intriguers at St. Petersburgh, much wished his disgrace; they were however, disappointed; his great abilities, and his past services, were not forgotten by such a prince as Alexander, who told his enemies, that count Marcoff must either remain where he is, or re-assume the place he occupied at home, at the death of the late empress: this answer silenced them at once, and he is at present hated and feared at the Thuilleries, but honored and esteemed by the whole diplomatic corps.

"The marquis de Luccheſini, the Prussian ambassador, was born at Lucca, in Italy, and as a disciple of Voltaire, was received as a literary companion at the court of the great Frederick: he has been a minister of state to the late and to the present king of Prussia; and was in 1800, sent ambassador to France: his talents are as great as various, and, it is believed that the Prussian prime minister, count Haugwitz, was not quite disinterest when he advised the king to send him out of the way; a philosopher from principle, and a republican by birth, he declared himself somewhat confounded at his arrival in France, in 1800, to find, instead of a nation of philosophers and republicans, as he expected, a nation of political fanatics, political slaves, and political tyrants.

"Baron E'Ehrensward, the Swedish ambassador, has resided in the same capacity fourteen years in Spain, and was in 1800, sent to England, to negociate about the captured Swedish convoys. He is a general in his country, and a man of loyal and noble manners and sentiments; he was some time ago exposed to the official anger of a certain great man, because his king, as a prince of the German empire, disapproved of the plunder called German indemnities; after half an hour's uninterrupted abuse, he bowed and retired, but said to a Swedish nobleman by his side, loud enough to be heard: "My friend, it requires more true courage to submit with patience to insults one cannot prevent or resent, than to insult persons we know can neither prevent nor resent it." Since that time he has been received coldly at court, but warmly by all persons of generous and independent principles.

"Chevalier De Dryer, the Danish minister, has passed thirty six years in embassies at the courts of St. James, St. Petersburgh and Madrid, and in 1797, a short time after Talleyrand ascended his ministerial throne, he was appointed to his present station, which he has filled with honor and ability, and in the critical times of the directory, he more than once expected lodgings in the temple. In 1802, was a favorite with the great man; but having formerly known at Madrid, the British minister in France, and continuing to live upon friendly and intimate terms with him, all his other prudences, all the services he formerly did madame Talleyrand, have not enabled him to escape the reproach of being an anglo man; an unpardonable crime with certain persons in certain countries.

"As to the ambassadors from Spain, Switzerland, Italy, Holland, and other free and independent nations, they are all chosen men, and might lose their places, if they admitted in their familiar society such an anti-jacobin as I am known to be. One of them, report says, has, however, had the courage or imprudence to say, that nothing proved more, that all the abuse in the Moniteur, for the last nine months, against England, was official, than its late silence since the king's message: but added he, "the speaking monitor of the drawing room has, no doubt, silenced the printed one, because he never yet suffered any rival, any equal, or any superior."

Somerset, Brown, from Baltimore bound to Cadiz.

Alexandria Advertiser.

TUESDAY, MAY 31.

Extract of a letter from Liverpool, dated 27th March, to a gentleman in Norfolk, received by the ship Industry, capt. Vickery.

"Our Collector had orders on Thursday last to desist from taking the COUNTERVAILING DUTIES on American ships, and goods imported in them after the 25th instant (March) which we suppose is the case with you."

Extract of a letter from an officer on board one of the French transports, dated Helvoet, April 6.

"It is with pleasure I sit down to inform you, that we are still here, and from present appearances will remain some time; for there in an English squadron cruising off here to intercept the expedition, and it appears that the English are determined the French shall not get possession of Louisiana. We have had the troops on board this fortnight and ready for sea; but we are in expectation the troops will be disembarked in a day or two, as this and the neighbourhood is to be garrisoned with 15,000 French troops. If we should be so fortunate as to get clear of those fellows we shall go immediately to St. Petersburg, and from thence proceed to Philadelphia."

A transport vessel has arrived at Halifax N. S. in 24 days from Ireland, with troops for the garrison.

BENJAMIN CONNET,

Who committed the aggravated robbery on Miss M'Dowell, in Pennsylvania, in March last, was apprehended about the first of May inst. in Upper Canada. He was conducted back thro the western part of this state a few days since. The above may be relied on. The circumstances of his apprehension were peculiar, and well nigh proved fatal to Connet. Patriot.

REMARKS—Since the date of our last price current, the sales of most descriptions of foreign produce have been very limited; this has consequently produced a scarcity of money, and some of our merchants begin to feel the effect of this and we do not look for relief until the issue of the present differences between this country and France is known. The demand for sugar is nearly suspended, but as our stock is moderate, and the expected supplies will not in all probability be great, we think the present prices will be supported, whatever may be the result of the present negociation, and should it terminate in a war, prices may probably advance.

The prices of Coffee are already so high, that we do not expect a war will affect them in any material degree, and should the present dispute be adjusted amicably, they may experience some decline, if we should receive a moderate supply.

Cocoa, W. India	70s	a 78s	——
Carracca	100	105	——

Scarce, but Carracca only in demand, and this may decline on the arrival of moderate supplies.

Very scarce, good White only in demand, and has of late greatly advanced in price.

For these last ten days the sales of cotton have been very limited, and our market is in a very dull state for all descriptions; we attribute this to the suspence we are kept in with respect to the result of the present negociation. It seems the general opinion, that if a war should take place, the Cotton market will for a while be in a depressed situation, as our trade for a time will be thrown out of its regular channel, but we do not apprehend any reduction ultimately in the prices, unless the scarcity of money should operate unfavourably on commercial operation. If the differences are amicably adjusted, we expect a revival in the demand at the present quotations.

The suspence in which the public is kept with regard to political events, has again thrown our grain and flour market into a very depressed state, and we have not for some years known prime English wheat sold so low as it has this week; 9s per 70lb is this day the highest given for such—the late accounts of the continental markets will prevent any purchases from being made for exportation, and we do not expect that several cargoes which were bonded, will now be brought into the market for home consumption. The Baltic will soon be open again, and we may look for some further supplies from that quarter. Our farmers have still considerable stocks on hand, and the present season has been particularly favourable for bringing forward the seed now in the ground. From the present appearance of the future currency of Grain and Flour, we shall apprehend a considerable decline, were the prices not already so low, that we think they cannot undergo any material change. If a war should take place, prices may for a time, at least experience some advance.

In the American Mercury of the 12th inst. published at Hartford, Mr. Babcock, the editor, after declaring, in substance, that the democrats in Connecticut, though greatly defeated at the last election, are still increasing and will finally triumph, assumes the prophetic style and raves like one of the ancient Sybils, in the following terrific language:

"When all Calabria shakes beneath "the feet of the people, it is much more "dreadful than the local eruptions of Ve- "suvius and Etna. When the earth all "around is falling in, tho' it be but slow- "ly, the crust is continually growing "thinner, and the poor wretches, without "a place to cast their eyes to for safety, "must ere long be swallowed up with "sudden destruction, and there can be "none to deliver. Let the federal de- "ceivers be assured an extensive fire is "kindled under them, whose flames are "increasing, tho' there may be but few "volcanoes exhibiting ebullitions."

Here a scene is disclosed, that is infinitely more horrible than the old gunpowder plot. Surely every federal republican must stand aghast; his teeth chattering in his head & his hair bristling on end.

What! Is Connecticut shaking like Calabria in the neighbourhood of some hidden Volcano? Is the earth all around falling in? Is the crust on which the people stand, continually growing thinner? Is an extensive subterraneous fire kindled? Are its flames increasing? Are several volcanoes exhibiting ebullitions, and are many more operating in secret?——All this must be truly tremendous.

While we suspect that citizen Babcock, scorched in his imagination by the sulphurous which fires he so feelingly describes, has rather overcharged the picture, we are constrained to acknowledge the aptness of his similies. His comparing Jacobinical principles, the general diffusion whereof would be subversive of the bonds of civil society, to volcanoes, is a thought entirely just, tho' not new. Balance.

"I don't know how to remove these large stones," said a labourer on a turnpike-road, "Call them federalists, and they will soon be removed," replied a bye stander. ibid.

PORT FOLIO.

This miscellany of elegant and polite literature, we are happy to see, continues the spirit with which it originated. As a paper devoted solely to the Belles Lettres, it has indisputable claims of precedence before any other publication in the country. Its columns are replete with articles of genius and usefulness. Its original departments, besides that part which we presume to flow from the pen of its able editor, is furnished by no ordinary talents. It is difficult to cull from its files an essay or a poem which can justly be entitled only to a mediocrity of merit. Its editor, who is known to many of us in this quarter, is a man of genius, and of whom his country will one day be proud to boast. It is a rare, indeed, we believe it an unprecedented thing in America, to find any one, except the one of whom we are speaking, who has uniformly devoted the whole of his services and talents to literary pursuits. In England, which abounds with learned men, and those who are proud to patronize them, the case may be otherwise. But in this county, the man of genius must unite with these pursuits some commercial enterprize, or submit to the alternative of penury and neglect.

In either case he reaps for his labors dissatisfaction. Should he adhere solely to the cultivation of his mind, and administering to his countrymen the gratuitous product of his midnight labours, chill penury damps the flame of his genius and extinguishes its brilliancy.—Should it be embarked in plants of commerce or speculation, he finds he is traversing a path from which he has, by habit, no compass to guide him, and it is altogether uncongenial with his wishes. The editor of the Port Folio has buffeted the billows of frequent disappointments and various discouragements. He has now conducted in the city of Philadelphia the valuable Miscellany of which we are writing, for nearly thirty months, and we find no depreciation in its value, and we hope no desalcation of its patrons. We have given this brief opinion of the paper and its editor, as we have had frequent occasion to do before, not only as a small tribute to their merits, but as inducement to gentlemen of leisure and wealth to subscribe for a work, from the annual perusal of which they will assuredly receive as much rational pleasure as they will at the end of the year from the retention of five undisturbed dollars in their coffers.

From the Albany Gazette.

To those Ladies of Wallingford who met at a Tavern there, and drank Seventeen Toasts, in celebrating the Ides of March 1803.

Most Beautiful!

The great Semiramis, the invincible redfaced Catharine of all the Russias, drank abundance of strong brandy; so did the mighty Czar; but their Ladies of Honor did never form themselves into a committee of the whole, and drink seventeen bumpers each. This high honor was reserved for your superior merit.

Most Accomplished!

Your patriotism, on this occasion, has exceeded all example, for even the ladies of Middletown, some years ago, drank but sixteen bumpers.

Most Lovely!

This is the sure way to multiply soldiers; and a democratic army of such amazons must be irresistable.

Most Deserving!

As soon as I heard that you had so gallantly discharged SEVENTEEN ROUNDS at the enemies of the immortal Mammoth, and that not one of you had fallen in the action, I said "Amen, these things must be written in a book—recorded in Druid song," and sent to the seventeen octagon churches.* So I have written a solemn ode on the occasion, which Elihu Palmer may set to music, and cause to be chaunted by the whole amazonian army.

Most Amiable!

I lay at your feet this pepper corn of my esteem, and am with the highest consideration, your most admiring DRUID.

Cayuga, April 1803.

AN ODE.

Ladies of Wallingford! all hail!
You will I toast, when e'er I drink
Cider, or beer, flip, wine or ale,
In cellar, green house, grove or dale;
You are the girls that never shrink!

Daughters of Bacchus! fill the bowl!
Let mirth, and punch, and wine abound:
French Joan, like you, had a great soul,
While petticoats could not controul;
She too, a pair of breeches found.

Ladies of Wallingford! proceed!
Levil old prudish fashions down,
For Jove and fate have both agreed,
That your right amazonian breed,
Shall raise a king to wear a crown.

Daughters of drink! distend your throats!
You wear the leather breeches now,
Change your sweet voice for hoarser notes,
Cling to the bottle like a vine,
And cry encore to martial songs.

Daughters of Bacchus! strong and bold,
Who does not envy your proud lot?
Your praise can never half be told,
Ere seventeen bumpers be forgot.

* The Temples of the Deists are built in the form of an octagon.

Ladies of Wallingford! be kind
To gentle Jonathan and Jo,
For they are nation good we find;
And should they ever have a mind,
Why let them—have a glass or so.

A Scolding Wife.——A man, plagued with an ill tempered wife, threw himself into the water, determined, by drowning, to avoid the miseries of being daily subjected to her scolding tongue. When he was taken up, the following lines, expressive of his feeling, were found in his pocket:

"Let lightnings flash—let thunder roll along,
Let hideous night fiends join in awful song,
Let earthquakes shake the earth from pole to pole,
And hell stand gaping for my sinning soul,
Let elements contend in endless strife,
All are not equal to a scolding wife.

A fair Cyprian in Richmond; having in a fit of industry applied herself to the business of Mantua making, affixed over the window of her lodging, a painted board, which by a trifling orthographical error, was inscribed thus—JANE SMITH, Mantormentor."

A Bellows Maker Whitechapel has placed the following notice on his window—"Asthmatic Bellows cured here"!

A great bargain in Land.

Will be sold at the Coffee House in Alexandria, on Wednesday the 1st of June next,

A valuable tract of Land lying on the waters of the Occoquan River, about three miles from Mr. Ellicott's Mills; containing five hundred and twenty six acres, as by Deed of a General Warrantee bearing date the 11th February, 1802, from the late Charles Turner to the subscribers. This Land is well adapted to corn, wheat and tobacco, and is well timbered of the growth of oak, hickory, and poplar; and the improvements are a comfortable dwelling house, kitchen, smoak house, stables, &c. &c. with several fine springs of water, together with a fine flourishing young orchard of peach and apple trees, and the situation considered remarkably healthy

Any person wishing to view the land, may be shewn it by applying to Edward Washington Esquire, who now has it in possession, until Christmas next, when it will be delivered up to the purchaser.

The advantage of cutting Cord Wood from this land is very great, there being a great abundance and navigation near at hand.

The terms of sale will be for approved paper, payment at two, four and six months.

Valuable Property FOR SALE.

One Tract of about 1,100 acres of land within ſix miles of Alexandria, on which are a good Griſt Mill with two pair of ſtones in good order; a Diſtillery with three ſtills and a boiler, the houſe has lately been enlarged and put in complete order; a dwelling houſe with two rooms on the firſt and four on the ſecond floor; an excellent ice-houſe, waſh-houſe and kitchen, all almoſt new and in good order; a large barn and ſtable almoſt new; ſeveral out houſes for the miller, diſtiller and work people, corn houſe, ſmoke houſe, ſpring houſe, and fowl's houſes, and a very good garden. There are about 2500 fruit trees on the Land, all of the choiceſt fruits America can afford, and, we will venture to lay that there is not a better collection in Virginia; about ſixty acres of the land are in meadow, and about 700 acres in woods, and moſt of it thickly timbered, particularly the bottom land, of which there are about 400 acres, excluſive of the meadow.

One other tract of land about 12 miles from Alexandria, and adjoining on the ſouth ſide of Ravenſworth, containing about 170 acres. This land is well ſituated for farming; there is a framed dwelling houſe on it, with two rooms on the firſt and two on the ſecond floor.

One other Tract about five miles from Alexandria, near the turnpike road and the land of Mr. Charles Lee, occupied by Mr. Fendall, containing 80 acres and moſt of it in woods. The only improvement on this land is a pretty good log houſe.

Lots in Alexandria.

That Lot of Ground on which the bake houſe and dwelling houſe ſtand, at preſent occupied by Mr. Andrew Jamieſon.

The Lot adjoining the bake houſe lot, on which the tobacco warehouſes ſtand.

A large Lot oppoſite the tobacco warehouſes, on which are two ſmall framed dwelling houſes and a carriage houſe.

A Lot on the north weſt corner of Queen and St. Aſaph ſtreets, containing 60 odd feet on Queen ſtreet and about 100 feet on St. Aſaph ſtreet.

A Lot on the eaſt ſide of Waſhington ſtreet, near Queen ſtreet, containing on Waſhington ſtreet 63 feet, and in depth 170 odd feet, with the benefit of an alley of 10 feet 6 inches, running the whole diſtance on the ſouth ſide and eaſt end of the lot.

Lands in the Weſtern Country.

One Tract of 1,675 acres, one of 2,000 acres, and one of 5,000 acres in Randolph, formerly Harriſon county, Virginia, equal in quality to moſt of the lands in that county. One tract in Kenhawa, formerly Montgomery county, on Mud river, containing about 5,000 acres; this land is about 40miles below the mouth of Great Kenhawa, and about 6 miles from the Ohio river, is almoſt all bottom land and equal in quality to any land in that county, and navigable within two miles of the land.

One Tract of 400 acres on Copitalico creek, which empties into the Great Kenhawa, ſaid to be very valuable.
